The Mission of Wheeling Jesuit University

Educating for Life

The Jesuit traditions of educational excellence and service to others guide all the programs at Wheeling Jesuit University. By integrating learning, research, and economic development with classical knowledge and Christian revelation, the University seeks to foster competence, creativity, and innovation both throughout and beyond the campus community. Graduates of the University enter the world of work with socially responsible goals, a lifelong appetite for learning, and the desire to make our universe a better place.

Educating Men and Women for Others

In its faculty and students, its research, and its outreach, the University is national and international. Yet, as the only Catholic college in West Virginia, Wheeling Jesuit also values its distinctive mission to the immediate area, educating local men and women and returning them to enrich their own communities. Wheeling Jesuit University firmly believes its graduates will enter into the professional world, prepared to use their God-given talents not solely for personal fulfillment but as men and women in service to others.

Educating for Leadership

To model the Jesuit concern for regional and global neighbors, the University welcomes people of all creeds, races, and nationalities to share in the intelligent pursuit of excellence. The University promotes close student-faculty contacts and encourages students to develop their full potential for leadership. Through a grounding in the liberal arts and, above all, the example of Jesus Christ, the University endeavors to produce intelligent, moral leaders who will champion the Jesuit values of faith, peace and justice. Wheeling Jesuit envisions a dynamic leadership role for the University in the lives of its students and in the world at large.
Philosophy

The founder of Jesuit education began his university studies at 35, with no financial aid, attending four colleges over the course of nine years before earning his degree by examination. St. Ignatius of Loyola demonstrated his own commitment to quality education by walking from Barcelona to Paris, so that he could study at the best university of his time. He perceived clearly that personal development of one’s full potential is a necessary prelude to service and social change.

In the Jesuit mission of today, higher education in all of its diversity still seeks one common goal: to embody the Creator’s love for humankind through self-improvement and service to others. With its spiritual foundation, its insistence on excellence and its capacity for adaptation, Jesuit education is committed to the student and to service to the community at large.

Adult and continuing education in Jesuit institutions shares each of these characteristics in a distinctive way. Rooted in the Ignatian vision, it is an integral part of the humanistic tradition which boldly asserts that every human being is worthy of dignity and respect. This educational vision brings together secular and moral leadership by espousing personal transformation. Moral leadership asserts itself when it is based upon clear thinking, communication skills, leadership training and ethical understanding. Today, this history and the Jesuit reputation for quality and prestige attracts thousands of busy adults and working professionals to Jesuit institutions. In the Ignatian spirit, the 28 Jesuit colleges and universities (see page 85 for list) currently serve nearly 50,000 adult students each year through both traditional and non-traditional programs.

Adult and continuing education is marked by the diversity of people who seek educational opportunities. Its hallmarks are seen in the need to adapt programs to alternative times and develop strategies for achieving the learning goals people are seeking in this world so jarred by change and turmoil. Adults are seeking to improve career possibilities while enhancing personal and professional potentials. Their interests vary from very specific short-term, non-credit career training and skill enhancement to wide-ranging, long-term academic degrees and certification. For some, a professional degree will be sought in the evenings that span a decade, while for others, an intensive workshop will open up a vista harboring opportunities and promise. No single path can satisfy the time constraints, career aspirations and personal needs of adult learners. They are as varied as the age, socio-economic status and ethnic background of the individuals involved. Adults challenge educators to respond with creativity, innovation and practicality: the exact demands called for in the Ignatian vision of education.

Education which is faithful to this vision remains open to the demands of diversity and works with individuals in their pursuit of excellence. Any academic discipline or any art of the practitioner that shares in this vision and allows for service to humanity is a legitimate endeavor within the Jesuit tradition. This vision and service were a part of the Jesuit tradition found in the early missionaries who poured out of Europe carrying the gospel to America and those fostering inculturation in Asia and elsewhere. The Americanization of the Jesuit mission in education exemplifies the Jesuits’ ability and desire to adapt to the culture within which they are working. The most current development in this ongoing Americanization process is demonstrated through the various colleges and divisions of continuing education: a movement necessitated by cultural needs and demands.

At the heart of the Jesuit vision and tradition is a love for individuals, a commitment to excellence and a care for addressing the needs of people everywhere. It is this vision and tradition which is embodied within the people and programs of continuing education on the Jesuit campuses throughout America.

The University offers students with documented disabilities reasonable accommodations on a case-by-case basis with confidentiality in compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. Students with special needs due to physical or learning disabilities should contact the Disability Services Director at 304-243-2427. Disability Services are coordinated through the Academic Resource Center (ARC), located on the ground floor of Ignatius Hall. A learning disabilities specialist is available at the ARC to provide assistance with time management, study skills or strategies that specifically address learning disability issues.

In order to receive assistance, students must disclose their disability to the University, provide current (within three years) and comprehensive documentation concerning the nature and extent of the disability and communicate their specific needs to the Disability Services Director. Wheeling Jesuit University is committed to providing reasonable accommodations to students with disabilities; however, it is the responsibility of these students to seek out available assistance on campus and to utilize individualized adjustments. Students with disabilities that require specific housing accommodations must contact Student Affairs before June 1. Ultimately, all students are responsible for their own academic achievement. They must attend classes, complete course assignments and fulfill all University requirements for their chosen field of study.
