

Peace Studies

Contact Person: Fr. James A. O'Brien, S.J., Ph.D.

The minor in peace studies is an interdisciplinary academic program which proposes a vision of human community given to the pursuit of justice and peace even in the midst of great human diversity and conflict. It welcomes students who desire to become creative agents of social change rather than proponents of narrow self-interest as they come to recognize and develop their personal talents and vocational visions.

Through this minor, the University hopes to further its mission of educating men and women for others, for life and for leadership. In a post-9/11 world locked into a war on terrorism, Wheeling Jesuit confidently connects a careful, scholarly search for right relationships in political, economic, professional and everyday life with its dedication to human dignity, freedom, justice and peace, enlivened by the Jesuit and Gospel world view which nourishes its curriculum and its people.

Requirements for the Minor in Peace Studies

The minor in peace studies consists of 18 credits (six three-credit courses, two of which are required and four electives). Required is one of the following two courses (choose one):

PHI 240 Philosophy of Peace and Justice

PHI 250 Philosophy of Jesuit Education

Plus the following course:

PST 486 Senior Seminar in Peace Studies

As for electives, a full listing of such courses is available from the director of the program. A list of courses for a given semester will be published at the time of preregistration. A course is included only after the request or permission of its instructor and the approval of the faculty committee members who volunteer to serve the program.

Questions about the minor should be directed to Fr. James A. O'Brien, S.J., the current contact person for the program.

Philosophy

Contact Persons: Thomas A. Michaud, Ph.D.
Rev. James A. O'Brien, S.J., Ph.D.
Beverly J.B. Whelton, Ph.D.

The Jesuit tradition of education always has championed the importance of philosophy, both for training the mind and for cultivating a love of truth and an integrity in its pursuit. Philosophy invites a student into dialogue with the great truth-seekers of history and of the present time. Thus it hopes to develop within the student a respect for great ideas, great minds and a life-long commitment to the search for truth, wisdom and justice.

Philosophy

Requirements for Philosophy Major Bachelor of Arts Degree

In addition to completing the core curriculum requirements, outlined on pp. 14-15 of this catalog, philosophy majors must complete 30 credits in philosophy, which includes PHI 305: Ethics. The three courses in metaphysics (PHI 307, 308 and 309) are recommended, though not required, for philosophy majors.

Special Notes on Major Requirement

As graduation requirements, philosophy majors must pass in their senior year a comprehensive one-hour oral examination and write and deliver a graduation qualifying paper. The oral examination will concern a list of thematic questions provided by the philosophy faculty. The qualifying paper can be the result of an upper level (300+) philosophy course, or independently prepared by the student on another subject of interest. For information about guidelines for and scheduling of the oral examination and qualifying paper, a student should consult the department chair.

Political & Economic Philosophy

Coordinator: Thomas A. Michaud, Ph.D.

A trans-disciplinary major that integrates the knowledge gained by the study of economics, political science and philosophy. Students will be encouraged and guided in an exploration of each of these disciplines, to understand how their connections affect ethics, law and public policy. This major is especially well-suited for Pre-Law students.

Minor in Philosophy

A student may minor, by taking, with the approval of the department, four courses beyond PHI 205, at least one of which is to be a 300/400 course.

Core-Fulfilling Courses

PHI 105 Logic and Knowledge
PHI 205 Philosophy of the Human Person
PHI 305 Ethics (juniors and seniors only)

Course Descriptions

PHI 105 Logic and Knowledge (3 crs)

Introduction to the fundamentals of critical reasoning (e.g.: the structure of deductive and inductive arguments; fallacies; the square of opposition and categorical syllogisms) and the ways in which critical reasoning integrates with the basic questions and positions in the philosophy of knowledge.

PHI 205 Philosophy of the Human Person (3 crs)

A philosophical study of the human person as a being who, while embodied in nature, is capable of rationally knowing, freely choosing and creatively acting as a unique individual open to communion with others and with the Transcendent. Prerequisite: PHI 105.

PHI 305 Ethics (3 crs)

How ought human beings live in society? Study of the nature, types and criteria of values, with an in-depth study of ethical principles and their applications to certain contemporary moral problems, e.g., abortion, euthanasia, capital punishment, war and peace. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and PHI 205.

THEMATIC AND HISTORICAL PHILOSOPHY

PHI 213 Aesthetics (3 crs)

Philosophical analysis of the aesthetic, its foundation in human experience, its role in works of art, its relation to imagination and conceptual thought as explicated in major philosophies of art. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.

PHI 214 Philosophy of Religion (3 crs)

A philosophical investigation of religion, its language and concepts, especially as it has developed historically in the West, and has been confronted by the phenomenon of contemporary atheism. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.

PHI 225 Eastern Patterns of Thought (3 crs)

A study of the doctrines, ideals and practices advanced by Eastern traditions of thought such as Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.

PHI 240 Philosophy of Peace and Justice (3 crs)

An introduction to the study of peace and justice in an age of conflict and widespread inequities. The course draws upon the enduring wisdom of philosophical reflection, the rich tradition of Jesuit education and the developing insights of contemporary thought to uncover the roots of peace, justice and their opposites. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.

PHI 250 Philosophy of Jesuit Education (3 crs)

An historical and philosophical overview of the Jesuit system of education; includes consideration of developmental and cultural influence in the lives of young people today, a consideration of the characteristics and principles of the Ignatian world vision as applied to the academic process, and an evaluation of the authenticity of the Ignatian vision in Wheeling Jesuit University practice.

Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.

PHI 251 Philosophy and Human Creativity (3 crs)

Study of the root, scope and fundamental role of human creativity as the means to intervene in the structure and direction of the world; the implications of this for education, laws, social arrangements. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.

PHI 254 Philosophy of Law (3 crs)

This course examines the meanings, bases, purposes, sources, implications and types of law. Questions addressed include: What is legal positivism and mere penalism? Are law and morality related? Are civil laws necessarily just? Can civil disobedience ever be justified? How are law and authority connected? Upon what conditions does the legislative process depend? Should judges make laws?

PHI 295 Women and Philosophy (3 crs)

A philosophical exploration of the historical and contemporary meaning of being women with an emphasis on the inherent dignity of women. It will also consider the contributions of selected women to philosophical scholarship along the traditional themes of beauty, truth, goodness and justice.

PHI 302 Society, Ethics and Technology (3 crs)

This course begins with a history of the philosophy of technology in order to understand the ethical values that characterize the development of technology. With this background, the course defines a model for the ethical assessment of technological invention and innovation, and then applies that model to evaluate specific issues relevant to the complex interrelationships between political economy, public policy and cultural change.

PHI 306 Philosophy and History of Sports (3 crs)

The philosophical and historical roots of organized sports are traced from the Greek and Roman civilizations through to sport in Western society. The course treats sport both as activity and as a phenomenon which assists in defining culture.

Prerequisite: Second year standing.

PHI 307-309 Metaphysics

Claims, methods and limits of metaphysics. A study of the issues of transcendence, causality, the categories, space and time and the human condition, with emphasis on textual study:

PHI 307 Metaphysics I: Ancient (3 crs)

Thinkers to be considered include the Pre-Socratics, Plato and Aristotle. Prerequisites: PHI 105 and 205.
