Dear Applicant:

The Mother Jones House is looking for up to eight sophomores, juniors, or seniors for the 2010-2011 school year. This is more than another housing option. It is an important and unique living and service experience that may very well change how you view service, your future career, and your faith. The Mother Jones House is a student service-learning residence created by a partnership between WJU and Laughlin Memorial Chapel (LMC), where a majority of the service hours are performed. The Mother Jones House is located in the most ethnically diverse and economically challenged neighborhood in Wheeling. Residents of the house live among the families and children they meet at LMC's after school program (K-12), at the Catholic Neighborhood Center food programs, the Wheeling Health Right clinic, and other service sites. In this year-long program, each student in the house commits to participate in:

- 10 hours of service in East Wheeling each week;
- Weekly "community night" dinners for neighbors, friends, faculty, staff, and guests;
- Prayer session with house members each week;
- Weekly house meeting;
- Service-learning course, Community Service in American Culture.

If possible, we ask you to avoid scheduling elective courses or work hours in the late afternoon/early evening hours Monday – Thursday in order to make fulfilling these requirements easier

The goal of the Mother Jones House program is to provide students meaningful contact with people from the neighborhood, university, and surrounding communities. While expanding the capacity of community partner agencies, students both experience the personal side of poverty and critically examine the economic, political and social forces that perpetuate it. The 300 hours of service each House member performs also makes him/her eligible for a $1000 AmeriCorps Education Award grant at the end of the academic year. This grant can be used toward future enrollment or to repay some educational loans. This AmeriCorps grant comes to us through the Bonner Leaders Program, a partnership with the Bonner Foundation and students from 75 institutions across the country. The Bonner Foundation also offers service and leadership training opportunities for which Mother Jones House students are eligible.

The cost to participate in the Mother Jones House for the 2010-2011 academic year is $1800 per semester. This includes housing and most meals, though some students choose to purchase a commuter meal plan for convenience. The Mother Jones House is considered university housing for the purposes of fulfilling the Wheeling Jesuit scholarship requirement to live on campus.

If you're interested in learning more about the Mother Jones House, we urge you to contact or visit us. Join us for dinner. Talk with some of the current residents. Tony Mazza, the House mentor, can help arrange this. You can reach him at the House (304) 233-2914, by cell (724) 601-3455, or by e-mail amazza@wju.edu. Each applicant must complete the attached form and return it to Mother Jones House Office (335 Donahue) by 4 p.m. on Friday, March 19th. Once your application is submitted you will be contacted for a personal interview. You will receive notification of the decision concerning your application before housing deadlines.

Wheeling Jesuit University is committed to preparing "men and women for service with and among others." This is a very special way to immerse in that preparation. We hope you will seriously consider this commitment.
